The master of the salling ship Linnet, which vessel arrived at Singapore on the 18th inst. reported that when off the Island of St. Paul's, as the ship was going slowly, through the water, one of the seamen accidentally fell overboard. Every effort was made to get at the man, but before the boat could reach him, a number of albatrosses had pounced upon the man's head, and with their ponderons beaks literally picked the unfortunate fellow's head to pieces.

At the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal the President, Sir Donald Smith, said there was much that ought to make them look forward hopefully.. They had a network of rail ways now very complete throughout, the old mary of the recommendations made in that and provinces; they had in the North-west a railway previous reports as to the sewerage of the city running to the Pacific, and they had now direct generally, connection with the East, and in a very short time they would have more immediate connection—or, at any rate, a much superior service to China and Japan. Short speeches were delivered, and many Chinese gentlemen took copies of the petition to secure signatures among those who were not present. Both the editors of the Chinesa papers, the Lat Pau and Sing Pau, were present, and will very likely give a full account of the proceedings. We hear that a public meeting of the English speaking community is likely to be called soon in the interests of this move ment against opium. The conditions in connection with the tenders for the proposed improved steamship service between Canada and the United Kingdom and France, scipulate that the service shall be a weekly one each way, and the first and last port of call in England, Plymouth or Southampton, and in France, Cherbourg, or such other port as may be agreed upon. The ports in Canada to be Quebec in summer, and Halifax, or Halifax and St. John, in winter, the steamers calling to land and embark mails at Rimonski during the season of summer navigation. It is desired that the new service shall commence on the 12th of-April, 1891, or as soon thereafter as possible, the contract to be for ten years as a fixed term, and to continue thereafter until determined by either party on 12 months', notice. The vessels employed are not to be of not less tonnage than 6.500 gross register, and to be of adequate strength and power to make an average speed of not less than 18 or 19 knots from port to port. Alter native tenders may be made for 18 and 19 knots. and the steamers are to be in all respects firstclass mail steamers, and equal in equipment to any that are crossing the Atlantic. Part of the correspondence between the Government, Si George Stephen, and the Messra. Anderson reference to the relinquishment by the latter of the proposed Atlantic mail service contract, was submitted to the Canadian Parliament on May 16th. On October 12th last Messrs. Anderson cabled Sir John Macdonald as follows: -" With regret we surrender to you the Atlantic contract you placed in our hands, as we can no longer reckon on the cordial oc-operation of the Canadi: Pacific Railway, Sir George Stephen atimated that he has ceased to take interess in our scheme." This was followed by a letter in which the Messrs. Anderson expressed their regret at having to arrive at that decision. as they had made good progress with their arrangements for the establishment of the Company, and had hoped to be able by the 1st November to intimate definite acceptance of the contract. Then the letter proceeds: "We had a along acted in concert with Sir George Stephe and others interested in the Canadian Pacific Railway: indeed, without the assurance of their co-operation we would not have entered upon the business. As soon, however, as we had signed the contract in Ottawa we began to observe indications which eventually led us to fear that we could no longer count on the continued cooperation of Sir George Stophen and his friends. This culminated in an interview we had with him on the 8th instant, when he distinctly stated that owing to some difficulty that had arisen about running the Canadian Pacific Railway trains through to Halfax he had ceased to be interested in the scheme. We would even now be pres ared to take the business in hand again if the conditions, as we believed them to exist at the time of our signing the contract in Ottawa.

were restored." The correspondence also includes several letters between Sir George Stephen and the Messrs. Anderson in which it is clerly shown that the withdrawal of the emport of hir George Stephen and Sir Donald Smith was due to the difficulty which arose in reference to the running Monday next, the 4th August, being a Bank of Canadian Pacific Railway's trains over the Intercolonial Railwa, from St. John to Halifax. ed that it is to be observed as a holiday by the The Andersons state that they had relied upon the cordial co-operation of the Capadian Pacific Railway and its leaders, but that being forced to The Bangkok Times gives publicity to a rum- | see that they could not depend upon it they threw sereement to surrender their (him contract to the new Company, and that the withdrawal of Sir George Stephen and Sir D. THE HON. O. CHADWICK'S FIN. REPORT ON THE MAIN DRAIN AGE SCHEME.

Mr. Chadwick's final report on the malrainage-scheme-was-laid-on-the-table-of-th Sanitary Board on Friday. The first part the report deals with the drainage of the East ern district, while the latter part gives a sum

THE TRASTERN DISTRICT. The Eastern district is bounded on the we by Glenealy Nullah and on the east by Causeway Bay. The present frontage forms a bay with a wide strip of foreshore expanded at low tides which is very foul. It seems probable, Mr. Shadwick says, that the reclamation of this foreshore will in time become an imperative necessity. The present frontage for the whole length of the listrict presents no really satisfactory position They would be smaller of course as for a sewer outfail. If the foreshore were reclaimed the Praya wall would be in reto be engaged, being something like 6,000 tons latively deep water and would form an unobjectionable position for direct outfalls. Considering the uncertainty as to the future condition of the foreshore, the best plan will . to provide for the strict requirements of th existing area only, with the minimum number of out-lets. If reclamation is made, then it will be in pipes of small diameter, working under out-falls being provided for the newly reclaimed as rapidly as possible. The funds might be almost every one here. Colonel Child ranks pumped to North Point. The project now by equal annual instalments in, say, 21 years. submitted is designed on this principle. It is Assuming the expenditure to be $750,000, and proposed to discharge the sewage by a number | that the money could be raised at 4 per cent. out-falls, carried out below low-water mark, then the annual instalment will be $53,460. into the harbour in front of the district. In accordance with these principles six out-fulls have been selected, viz., 1) at East Point, (2) opposite Percival Street. (3) opposite Observation Place, (4) opposite Heard Street, (5) opposi a Spring Gardens Lane, and (b) opposite Arsenal Street. From each of these outfalls a pipe of a diameter sufficient to carry The Straits Times says :- There was a large off the dry weither flow of the sewage should be laid across the foreshore and terminate at a depth of 2 feet below low water spring tides.

Mr. Chadwick then proceeds to disonse at consideration the matter of requisiting the British Isiderable length an intercention scheme the arliament to prohibit the growth of and who's of the sewage of the district being cone utrated and discharged by puinping at North Point. For this purpose he recommends the considerably more than a thousa dethinese must use of a long cast iron syphon, of which names were added to the Ch nese petition, convey the sewage to the pumping station. Mr. Tan Kim Ching, the Siamese Consul, The probable cost of proposed sewage works presided, and a goodly number of thinese to the Eastern District may be estimated as

We give the remainder of the report in full :--29.—Having now completed the discussion of the sewerage system of Victoria, I will now briefly recapitulate the recommendations made, and the arrangements proposed, for carrying them into effect. 40.—The whole of the city should be with pipe sewers of small diameter. 41.—The dry-weather flow of the sewers. of sewage proper, should be wholly intercepted from the storm-water channels, which are not and cannot be made fit for its reception and convevance. The sewage should only gain access to the storm-water channels, when so freely iluted with rain as to loose the character o 42 -Rain-water should be excluded from the sewerage system as far as possible. Rain from back yards and from some portions of the roofs must be admitted to the house drains, and carried by them to the street sewers. These, however, could not be specially enlarged to provide for the rain fall, but they should be freely furnished with storm over-flows, whereby any excess of flow, over and above their carrying capacity, will escape to the storm-water channels, and thus prevent all danger of flooding private property. 43.—The sewers, both great and small, must have self-cleansing gradients; that is to say, the

44.-In the Western and Central District. unless the whole sewage is removed entirely from the harbour frontage of the city, nothing | year ending 30th June last. will be gained by its concentration at any one out-fall. When the Prays Reclamation is finished, the whole frontage will be equally good, as a position for out-falls, and the This being the case, it is only necessary to place the out-falls sufficiently hear together to allow f self-cleansing gradients, but each out-fall 45.—The level of the sewers at the out-fall should be little below mean-sea-level, so that, reely through them. 46.—The Eastern District offers no really avoulable sites for out-falls. The nuisance pipes below low-water mark, so much so that the moroved out-falls will no longer be sources of 47 — The sewage can easily be intercepted from the foreshore of t e Easte n District, but to do so pumping will be required. The best out fall will claim for the cost of making good the defects: n this case will be North Point. 48 -The sewings of the Western and Central Pending Districts, as well as that of the Upper District could be conveyed to an out-fall at Sulphur

vould justify the expenditure. 9.—The sewerage system of the District, mainly inhabited by Europeans, be wholly independent of the Lower Districts. 50.—The probable cost of the sewerage works will be as follows:-ewerage of Upper district, inclusive of regula

Sewerage of Western, and Central districts. Sewerage of Eastern district, 42,500,00 Intercepting syphon, wells, pumps, engines, and pumping-main for Eastern district ..70,000 00

51 -In addition to this, a certain expenditure l on altering and renewing storm-water channels most be incurred. This will have to be done when the sewerage-work is in hand, as it would add to the cost and to the inconvenience to the public to open these channels up merely for the purpose of inspection, close them sgain, and finally re-open when the work is in hand.

52.—The sewerage work is to be carried out by the department entrusted with the completion of the water-works, and it will therefore be desirable to provide the necessary funds for both works at the same time and in the same manner.

58.—The funds to be provided are as follows :-Estimated cost of completing the water Estimated cost of sowerage, say, Funds provided in this year's Estimates— New Water-mains....

54.—In addition to the water and drainage works, designed and estimated, numerous other works, which have not been designed and estimated, will be required to complete the sanitation of Hongkong. These are:-Drainage of Villages, principally those in the Kowloon Peninsula. Water supply of Kowloon Peninsula. Alterations to storm water-channels. Extension of Peak out-fall sewers and proviion of some means of sewage disposal. Water-supply of Aberdeen... Also meters and sundry for Water-works.

The Kowloon water supply has been roughly estimated at $180,000. .-- It seems probable therefore that a sum not less than $750,000 expended on water-supply, drainage, and sanitation, during a period of

> THE LONDON POLICE AGITATION? The agitation among the London police members of the force is certain to begin to: night. The centre of the agitation is at Bow Street, where many of the men were suspended yesterday evening for refusing to go on duty. Forty constables, who took part in Saturday's > strike have been dismissed from the force. In the House of Commons this evening, Mr. latthews, replying to a question, said that only young constables were concerned in the present agitation and that the conduct of the elder memhers of the force was excellent. He assured the House that there would be no interruption in the police service of London.

An immense crowd collected at Bow Street last evening, attracted there by the promised police strike. A large body of mounted police paraded the street, but failed to clear away the mob, many of whom were arrested for inciting

A basin was thrown from the windows of Bow Street Station amongst the mounted police. A force of cavalry eventually had to be summoned to restore order and patrolled the street. They afterwards escorted the Prince of Wales from the Opera to Marlborough House. Only a handful of constables refused duty. and their places have been filled by reserves from other Divisions.

The strike is altogether a failure. At midnight torrents of rain fell and thinned the crowd in the streets, and quietness was restored. Threatening crowds assembled in Bow Street The Servian Governme t are not satisfied this morning, as more dismissals of constables were expected to take place.

> Large mobs of roughs collected in Bow Street lis afternoon and jeered at the police, who are rested several of them. Attempts were then made by the mob to resome those who had been arrested, but the police effectually resisted, the attempt, and charged the mob with their batons. injuring some of them.

LONDON, 9th July. Frequent conflicts took place between the Banksmob and the police at Bow Street last evening in which many were injured. The mob afterwards moved from Bow Street westwards, the castle-on-Tyne on Saturday, in the presence of police following them. Much damage was done a large company, including General Sir Peter to shop win lows in the neighbourhood through Campbell, Moore&Co.

which the roughs pessed. LONDON, Sth July. Renewed scrimmages took place at Bow Street It is stated that the Porte has sent a fresh last evening between the police and the mob, ___MUTINY IN THE GUARDS.

LONDON, 9th July. The agitation among the London Postmen is Pleasant Parcels Office: and three hundred Postmen at Saint Martin's de Grand struck work, but afterwards resumed their duties.

LONDON, 10th July The postmen offered Mr. Raikes to defer clined to accede to these demands, and a meeting of the postmen was held last night on Clerken-In the House of Commons this evening, the well Green, at which five thousand mon were in the morning unless the blackless were removed.

One hundred postmen to-day struck in the Eastern and Northern districts. Three hundred held demonstrations in the City and marched westward for the purpose of gaining adherents. One hundred more postmen were dismissed to-day who had mixed in the strike movements. Mr. Raikes maintains a resolute attitude and t is believed the strike will fail. LONDON, 11th July. The postmen's union in London announces a general strike until the right of the meeting and free combination are recognised.

Mr. Raikes received a deputation of postmen yesterday and promised to consider their comthe Slave trade; and the cession of Vitu secures plaints. The crisis is, therefore, now over. The total number of men dismissed is four hundred. THE HYDERARAD CASE. Bombay, 8th July.

"It will be a very unpleasant business, but I think I could do it somewhat more wife lived in perfect contentment and happiness befically than Meredith." Yes, I suppose you could," Mr. Ferris ad named their house. Then came the event that mitted. "Meredith is an excellent clerk, but scarcely a man for a delicate mission. You see, born, and a week later its mother laid in the in the first place you will have to break the news grave. No one could have been kinder or more of her father's death to the girl: fortunately it is not likely she can have any very lively affect that terrible time; she had become much at tion for him, as she seems to have seen him only tached to her lodger, and her death was a real once a year; however, there is never any telling. I have seen so many instances of women caring for worthless brutes, that I believe anything is possible with them. Then when that part of the business is over, you will have to find out what she really knows about her birth, whether she he is like men, he loved himself more. Now. don't go and make a fool of yourself. James: i isn't because young Clitheree is a fool that you should neglect his interest and allow yourself to be so worked upon by the sight of a girl in tears, as to make arrangements of altogether unnecessary liberality. I know what you young fellows are; you lose your heads altogether di rectly you see a young woman in the case." "I will try and keep my head, father." "Well, well, this is all very annoying: o course, you will get back as soon as you can. You know how busy we are at present. "I know, sir. I will cross to night to Paris and go straight down from there. I won't wast an hour more than I can kelp over the business.

It is very far from a pleasant one." In a pretty little house standing detached commanding a view over the town of St. Malo. and the sea beyond, dwelt M. and Madame Duport; it would perhaps have been more correct to put the lady first, for there could be a doubt that she was the moving spirit of the astablishment. Madame Duport was a native of Jersey, her father was a cultivator on a small scale, and baving a family out of all proportion to the extent of his holding, he was glad to so copt the offer of an English visitor to the Island to take Annette, the eldest of his girls, as a nursemaid. She had gone away to England and did not return-for fifteen years, when she came back with what seemed to her family a little fortune. She had only remained for three years in the nursery, when her mistress had promoted her to the position of her own maid. Annelte was prudent and economical, she was a good needle woman and had a genius for dressmaking,

As the only daughter married the year before, her master had no forther need for her service, but he made her a pre sent of a hundred pounds, and with this and her savings of fifteen years she returned to Jersey Her stay there was a short one, for she had already been engaged for three years to Victor Duport, a teacher of French in London. He and Annette had talked the matter over reason. ably; they were no longer young and impetuous.

He says he will come over from time to time to see the child, but I do not think that we shall see him often." As time went on, and no children were born to Madame Duport, she came to regard the little girl as her own. She had been right in her conjecture that its father's visits would not be frequent, and indeed it was not until Constance was three years old that he again [75] HE Steamship made his appearance at St. Malo. He had particularly requested that she should be taught English as soon as she could speak, and the child was already able to prattle with equal facility in
